

THE TAX INSTITUTE

2021 National GST Conference

2–3 December 2021 | Sofitel Sydney Darling Harbour

13 CPD hours

Welcome

The Tax Institute's National GST Conference – Australia's pre-eminent event for GST practitioners and corporate advisory specialists returns to Sydney in 2021.

It is with great anticipation that we welcome Professor Graeme Cooper, as keynote speaker for this year's event.

Graeme is a well known leading tax academic and author. He provides distinctive commentary and thought provoking questions on the present state of the Australian tax system. Graeme is a Professor of Taxation Law at the University of Sydney. His focus is domestic corporate taxation, comparative tax law and tax policy.

The ensuing program will be delivered over two days by some of Australia's leading GST experts from the tax profession, industry and government. Many of the conference sessions will have an in depth look through topical issues providing practical takeaways and applications for GST specialists.

In another program highlight, Roderick Cordara, QC, Essex Court Chambers, will be joining us in a "virtual session" updating us on VAT post Brexit including what UK VAT can learn from Australian GST, what lessons 20 years of MTIC litigation in UK VAT has for GST and at a time when no one can cross borders, how issues are shaping up globally.

We are also excited to welcome Rebecca Saint, ATO Deputy Commissioner, Public Groups and Internationals, who will provide insight on the Justified Trust Project, what is attracting the ATO's attention and ATO review activities going forward.

The Organising Committee are excited about being able to come together both in person and online at the 2021 Conference. We are also excited about the extremely high calibre of speakers at this year's event, so we encourage you to join us and bring your knowledge on key GST issues up to date, discover the latest practical thinking and take advantage of this great opportunity to network with colleagues and fellow GST experts. We look forward to seeing you at the conference.

Technical program

Day 1 – Thursday, 2 December 2021

Time	Session	Presenter(s)
8:00–8:45am	Registration
8:45–9:00am	Welcome and opening address	Anne Collins Glencore
9:00–9:45am	Session 1: Keynote address: The birthday toast John and Peter's baby is turning 21 which seems like a good opportunity for some reflection. We know the conception was unhappy (Paul especially was not pleased) and we know the birth was difficult. But how have the decades treated the baby, and us? After so long we now know each other a bit better; we can even see some of the family traits coming out (especially from the European side). It's time to recollect and to make a few predictions, and maybe lift a glass or two.	Graeme Cooper, FTI University of Sydney
9:45–10:30am	Session 2: Hot topics, issues and tips As a result of the impacts of a global COVID-19 pandemic, this has been the year that no one will ever forget. It has also been a year witness to a few interesting technical developments on the indirect tax front. This session will take a look back at the key GST related developments that have arisen across cases, legislation rulings and other ATO public guidance released. In particular, we will address matters which saw GST technical issues become pertinent to the application of COVID-19 economic stimulus relief legislation. We will also explore the complexities of the GST technical and related issues arising from the Crown Casino litigation.	Tanya O'Callaghan Australian Taxation Office Sasha Smith, FTI Deloitte
10:30–11:00am	Morning tea
11:00am–12:00pm	Session 3: Compulsory information requests in an era of mass data The Commissioner has broad powers to compulsorily require the production of documentation and information from residents and non-residents. Of course, the information sought need not relate to the person from whom the information is sought nor need it reflect any particular concern the Commissioner might have. It is also not necessary for the Commissioner to demonstrate that use of these notices is the only way the Commissioner can obtain the information. The Courts have typically been reluctant to pare back this power. Are these powers still appropriate? This presentation will review these powers in the light of GST administration and the practical problems they currently raise and some concerns for the future.	Andrew Sommer, CTA Clayton Utz
12:00–1:00pm	Session 4: Travelex: Understanding the aftermath The recent decision of the High Court in Travelex has brought to an end the latest chapter in one of Australia's longest running series of GST litigation. While the case itself directly concerns the determination of the date from which delayed refund interest was payable, answering this question ultimately required a consideration of fundamental areas of the indirect tax law and long-standing administrative practices of the Commissioner of Taxation. This session will explore the legal and administrative consequences of the High Court's decision, dealing with the implications for matters such as the status of revised BASs and the scope for withholding GST refunds following both this decision and the earlier decision of the Full Federal Court in Multiflex.	Patrick Boyd Australian Taxation Office Kevin O'Rourke O'Rourke Consulting

11:00am–12:00pm	Session 10: The Gold Case – where to from here The High Court's rejection of the Commissioner's special leave application in the "Gold Case" (Commissioner of Taxation v ACN 154 920 199 Pty Ltd (in liq)) means that the case returns to the AAT to be reheard in relation to the avoidance issue, with the question of whether the activities of the taxpayer constituted "refining" having been resolved in favour of the taxpayer. This followed the Full Federal Court overturning the decision of the AAT that the taxpayer was not the first refiner of precious metal for the purposes of s 38-385 and that division 165 nevertheless operated to deny the taxpayer input tax credits. The Full Court held that the AAT had denied the taxpayer procedural fairness and that the Division 165 question needed to be reheard by the AAT. Special leave was only sought on the latter issue. Chris Sievers will deal with the substantive issues canvassed by the Full Court, including the classification of supplies of gold and the interpretation of Division 165 of the GST Act as well as the concepts of procedural fairness in litigation.
