Technical program

Day 1 – Thursday, 4 November

Time	Topic	Presenter
10.00–11.00am	Session 1: Keynote address: Property and taxes - where are we at and what should be done In a time when governments are increasingly fiscally constrained by the pandemic response, we are seeing a trend toward increased property taxes as a way of funding government infrastructure, services and operations. Danni Hunter, Victorian Executive Director at the Property Council, will deliver a keynote address canvassing the political and policy landscape as it relates to the property industry, and specifically the growing reliance on property taxes by our elected governments. Is property the solution? Or by increasing taxes on the property sector, are we in fact constraining our potential for lasting economic recovery? These macro questions will set the scene for more detailed sessions through the conference and will frame our thinking as we dive deeper into the property tax questions of our time.	Danni Hunter Property Council of Australia
11.00am–12.00pm	Session 2: Property development - change of intention and advising clients It is imperative for practitioners to understand how to navigate the minefield of property development, whether it be small-scale subdivisions or large projects. Recent cases have demonstrated the ATO's focus on this area, and the uncertainty practitioners are facing when considering the relevant factors in determining the correct tax treatment for the transaction. In this session David will provide a practical overview of the tax implications of property development, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none">– At what point does property cross the line dividing 'mere realisation' and 'a profit-making undertaking' or even carrying on a business?– What do recent cases contribute to the established body of law that guides where that line is drawn?– What are the income tax and CGT consequences arising from a change of purpose: capital to revenue, and vice versa?– Key advice points to offer clients that will give them clarity on where they stand, and the required information to make decisions– Managing your risks as the advisor.	David Montani, CTA Nexia Australia
12.00–12.30pm	Lunch

“The Organising Committee is delighted to offer practitioners this program. We are grateful to the outstanding line-up of speakers who are presenting for the Institute. Our speakers are addressing topics that are critical to understanding how taxes of all kinds affect property in all its forms. Any advisor who has property clients will be grappling with some unusual issues in COVID, and will also be interested in current thinking on the traditional areas of contention in the property sphere.”

Michael Charles, CTA
Chair, Organising Committee

12.30–1.30pm	Session 3: What happens when the ATO and the Taxpayer don't see eye-to eye This session will explore the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – What issue is the ATO looking at? – What did you intend to do and why? – What did you actually do and how do you prove what you did? – Is there a difference between a subjective, objective and ATO view of what you have done, and does it matter? In particular, what about changes in purpose caused by unexpected changes (e.g., a perfect storm of rental yields falling, cost of funds falling with some liquidity constraints while asset values possibly rise as a result of COVID-19 pandemic)? – What to do if there are issues you are concerned about that haven't been raised? – Exit Signs: when can you realistically expect to resolve an issue, how do you set about beginning a process towards resolution and how do you manage your client and internal stakeholders to achieve resolution? – When is litigation a realistic option and choice of forum: Administrative Appeals Tribunal, advantages of the AAT Small Business Taxation Division compared to the Federal Court of Australia? – What you could have done: with the benefit of hindsight and what to do about it in the future? 	Gareth Redenbach, CTA Victorian Bar
1.30–2.30pm	Session 4: Real Estate – what is taxed and how it is taxed This session will examine the intersection of statute and equitable principles in ascertaining the liability of trustees and beneficiaries of property-owning trusts, for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Income Tax, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – the assessment of profits as income – the assessment of profits as capital gains – the effects of vesting, variation and renunciation on beneficial rights – Duties, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – dutiable transfers – economic interests 	Khai-Yin Lim, CTA Victorian Bar Terry Murphy QC, CTA Victorian Bar

Day 2 – Thursday, 11 November

Time	Topic	Presenter
10.00–11.00am	Session 5: Windfall Gains Tax – impact for landowners, purchasers, and developers The Windfall Gains Tax is a value capture property tax that was announced by the Victorian Treasurer in this year's state budget and is currently proposed to commence on 1 July 2022. Since being announced, it has attracted significant national attention and controversy due to the many uncertainties and anticipated adverse impacts for landowners, purchasers, and developers. This session will explore the proposed Windfall Gains Tax and the main issues to be considered if it comes into effect, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none">– The tax base and tax rate– Exemptions– Deferral provisions– Objection rights– Transitional arrangements– Issues on the horizon including potential implications for other States and Territories	Irina Tan Pitcher Partners Craig Whatman, CTA Pitcher Partners
11.00am–12.00pm	Session 6: Vacant Land – Deductions and Concessions There has been recent legislative change and ATO guidance issued in relation to deductions associated with vacant land. Additionally, there have been recent cases and ATO statements regarding small business CGT concessions available when vacant land is sold. This session covers the current state of play of tax and vacant land including: <ul style="list-style-type: none">– Section 26-102 and the limits of deductions associated with vacant land– Draft Taxation Ruling TR 2021/D5 which explains the Commissioner's view of Section 26-1– The Eichmann Case and the final decision allowing the small business CGT concessions to be claimed; and– The Commissioner's Decision Impact Statement regarding Eichmann and what the crucial facts will be in future cases to obtain concessions.	Tom Aitkenhead Hoffman Kelly Jacqui Reeves BusinessDEPOT

Time	Topic	Presenter
12.30–1.30pm	Session 7: GST considerations on the purchase of large parcels of land by residential property developers This session will discuss the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Does there need to be a purchase of the land? A brief primer on GST issues associated with Project Delivery Agreements and similar arrangements. – If there is to be a purchase of the land: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Key GST considerations, including cashflow and margin scheme preservation and optimisation. – The profile of the vendor, and its relevance to GST treatment on purchase of the land: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – ‘Mums and Dads’ – Commercial and residential landlords – Farmers and former farmers – Other developers (including ‘would be’ developers) – Government entities – Large parcels of land containing residential premises- what are the outer limits of non-taxable treatment? 	Matthew Evans Deloitte
1.30–2.30pm	Session 8: After the deluge: mopping up the general principles of taxation for landlords and tenants This session will discuss the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Rent abatements and deferrals – Impact of code of conduct for commercial tenancies – Income derivation by landlord when tenant cannot pay – Writing off the tenant’s debt: consequences for landlord and tenant – Renegotiating the lease: lease incentives, business benefit, capital gains – Implications for landlord/owner if use of property changes – Carry-back losses for landlords and tenants 	Alistair Haskett, FTI Greenwoods & Herbert Smith Freehills Chris Neil, FTI Greenwoods & Herbert Smith Freehills

“Working in property taxes, I find The Tax Institute’s Property Intensive a must attend. It provides deep knowledge on recent changes and is forward-looking to keep you ahead of the game.”
